

Envytory vs. 30-Year-Old O&G Software

Side by side with the system you run your books on today.

	30-YEAR-OLD O&G SOFTWARE	ENVYTORY
What you owe your owners	Known when you run the revenue and billing cycle: extract, distribute, post.	JIB Live. Every owner's balance, current as of your last posted check or bill, any day of the month. The number on screen is the calculation that cuts the check.
Undoing a cycle	Back up before you post; undo by restoring the backup.	Reverse the run in one step. Everything it posted comes back out, owner suspense included.
Revenue check stubs	Keyed by hand from the stub, or imported from a spreadsheet or CDEX feed.	Forward the stub to your company's own address, or upload the scan or PDF. It's staged with the purchaser and wells matched, and master-meter checks split to their member wells.
Vendor bills	Keyed on the invoice screen, with the scan attached.	Forward the bill to your company's own address, or upload the scan or PDF. It arrives as a draft with the vendor matched, and nothing posts until you say so.
Texas severance	Rates kept in a matrix you key and maintain.	Texas gas credit tiers kept current for you. Severance computed for each production month, with variances flagged.
Where it runs	A Windows desktop program, reached through Citrix or a remote desktop.	In the browser. No Citrix, no server. Your bookkeeper and your CPA each get their own login.
Financial statements	Run from the report writer; a cash flow statement means building its definition yourself.	P&L with budget, balance sheet, cash flow, trial balance and aging in one place, refreshed whenever anything posts. Every figure opens to the entries behind it.

Moving over

- Your backup, loaded. Chart of accounts, owners, decks and wells come across. Nothing retyped.
- Proven on a real operator's month: billing matched their old system to the cent, and every dollar of owner suspense tied.
- Two free weeks, starting once your data is loaded. We run your month alongside your current system, so you can compare the two on your own books.

Founding price

500 a month, billed annually

Locked. Twenty seats.

A card holds your spot; nothing is charged during the two weeks, and after that the year is invoiced.

The left column describes that software as its own documentation does. "Live" means current as of your last posted check or bill.
